

After No New Jobs Summer, Obama Should Abandon His No New Jobs Regulations

“If ... Mr. Obama read off a long list of regulatory decisions like this, the market and the economy would head north.”

Wall Street Journal, 9/2/2011

The First Step:

- President Obama recently delayed – although only until after his next election – a proposed EPA ozone regulation that would have cost another 7.3 million jobs over the next decade and turned hundreds of counties across America into No New Jobs Zones.
- Only after it was announced that no new jobs were created in August did President Obama decide to abandon this job-killing regulation.

More Needs to be Done:

- President Obama has delayed one bad regulation that would harm businesses and strangle job creation across this country, but much more needs to be done.
- With two million more Americans unemployed than the day he took office, President Obama should immediately put an end to his other job-killing and economically destructive energy regulations:

Obama Policy	Potential Jobs Lost
EPA Greenhouse Gas Regulations	1,400,000
New Utility Regulations	1,400,000
Onshore Oil and Gas Lease Delays	504,000
Offshore Drilling “Permitorium”	430,000
Reclassification of Coal Ash as Hazardous	316,000
New Boiler Regulations	60,000
Alaska Drilling Delays	57,000
New Cement Kiln Regulations	15,000
